

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A current driver circuit has a current driver and a current compensation circuit. The current driver has a current source transistor connected to a power source potential level, while it is coupled to a pair of transmission lines. The current compensation circuit is 5 coupled to the output side of the current source transistor for the compensation of an output current from the current driver in response to a common mode potential of the pair of transmission lines.